Section 2: The Great Depression

A Political Campaign Poster

Directions: Advertisements are a common way for political candidates to get their campaign messages to the public. The political poster shown here came from an unusual campaign. Franklin Roosevelt was running for his fourth term as president. The nation was also involved in a world war. Answer the following questions to help you analyze the poster.

1. Why do you think the following phrases were used on the poster: "The Man Who Fights for Human Rights" "Win the War", "Win the Peace", "Just Another American", "Liberty", and "Prosperity"?
2. Look at the list of Roosevelt's character traits. Which of them, in your opinion, are important for a presidential candidate?
3. What was the reason for listing Roosevelt's character traits down the center of the poster?
1. To what other famous person was Roosevelt compared?
